

Stop Women And Consider

This Fact—that in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience with women's diseases covers twenty-five years.

The present Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, was for years under her direction, and has ever since her decease continued to advise women.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty causes them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probable examinations of even their family physician. Such questioning and examination is unnecessary. Without cost you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

MRS. PINKHAM'S STANDING INVITATION:

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established this confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Never has she published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which Mrs. Pinkham has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge needed in your case. She asks nothing in return except your good will, and her advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. Address Mrs. Pinkham, care of Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

WILLIAMSTOWN.

Mrs. M. N. McNany has been in St. Albans in late days.

Marion, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Beckett, is to remain in Paris a year, for the study of painting.

Dr. E. B. Watson writes of having a very pleasant time at his brother's, in Greenfield, Mass., on his vacation.

Charles H. Beckett and wife of New York City have recently returned from Europe, and they are expected here soon.

Mrs. Will O. Martin has lately visited her old home in Canaan, Ontario. She went largely because of her father's ill health.

The three daughters of the late Rev. T. F. Barnard, who visited here recently, write back that they had a most enjoyable time here.

Willie P. Briggs has lost another horse. He was unfortunate enough to lose two last year. Any horse that he would have on his lands, would likely be "worth having."

It is said that the case of Arthur York, son of Frank C. York, at the Heat-on hospital, Montpelier, now looks very hopeful. It seemed an almost hopeless case not very long ago, the result of the removal of a portion of a kidney.

We hope yet to get an authentic and full statement of matters pertaining to our grange fair last Thursday and Friday. The general report that comes to us, is that the fair was a success, the weather having been very favorable.

The next meeting of the Ladies' Home Study club will be with Mrs. Walter E. Granger, next week Saturday, Oct. 15. The program will be "Quotations from Indian Lore," and "A Day With the Indians." The paper will be by Mrs. Sarah Work Seaver.

The historical tea by the Ladies' Home Study club at the home of Mrs. Leslie D. Gale, last Saturday, is reported to be a pleasant occasion. The club had the pleasure of the presence of Mrs. Hollister, Mrs. Wilbur F. Shepard, and Miss Isham of Barre City as guests.

A Kinsman Martin decides that if he is able to return with his sister, Mrs. Betsey D. Perkins, on Wednesday, to his home in Dorchester, Mass., he will do so. His friends will all be glad of his prospects of having a good home and good care in his ill health, in his three score years and ten.

One incident in connection with the grange fair last week was that Mrs. Den J. Briggs was driving alone in a buggy and was near the turn of the Brookfield road, adjacent to Henry Poole's place, when her buggy was hit by a man driving in the opposite direction and rendered useless for the time. Fortunately, no one was injured.

We lately heard from our highly esteemed former townsman, Dr. William Bass, for more than half a century a practicing physician in Lowell, Mass. Doctor Bass is an uncle of Robert P. Bass, whom we hope to see the next governor of New Hampshire. The doctor has had a great deal of poor health in his life, but now, well along in the "seventies," he is quite well. His wife has long been a good deal of an invalid, and is so at present.

The marriage of Miss Agnes Catherine, only daughter of our former townsfolk, Dr. George E. and Mrs. Carrie Hill Maloy, now of St. Cloud, Minnesota, to George Abram Moore, of that city, will take place Wednesday evening, Oct. 12. The ceremony will be performed in the St. John's Episcopal church of that place, and a reception will immediately follow. As the doctor's only son, Charles, is a practicing lawyer, in another town, the coming marriage of this only daughter, we fear, will cast a shadow over the home, of which we suspect she has been very much of a light. We therefore send our old friends, congratulations tinged with commiserations.

A Kinsman Martin, son of the late Russell Martin, is sick now at the home of Ed. J. Poor with heart trouble from which he has been suffering for some months. When his sister, Mrs. Betsey Perkins came here from Massachusetts a short time ago, she hoped to take him home with her to care for him. How it may be, now, remains to be seen.

Last week we had the pleasure of a visit with a man who lived here years ago, and who, at the time, was a great invalid with stomach trouble. He tells now of the much money spent with physicians and their failure to cure him at the time. Finally he moved to another county, where the water on his place was soft. Here he had always used hard water. Presently his stomach took on health, and as he thinks, wholly because of the change of water, and he is now apparently a well man.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

"The Girl in the Taxi."

The greatest event of the present theatrical season will be marked in this city by the initial appearance of that widely heralded play, adapted from the French, entitled "The Girl in the Taxi," which is scheduled for appearance at the opera house next Saturday evening. It is said to be one big scream from curtain to curtain.

The mix-ups start at the flat of John Stewart on Riverside Drive, New York. Mr. Stewart's family is a wife and one son, the wife very much on the hen-with-one-chick order, the son just arriving at tennish fannels and $5 a month spending money—and objecting strenuously to the penny train forced upon him. Indeed he has been making absent treatment love to a contortionist lady in the flat upstairs and pawning his father's clothes to buy flowers for her. Then Percy and Mary Peters appear upon the scene. Percy is looking for "the girl in the taxi," who proves to be Mrs. Smith, too wife of a perfume manufacturer who comes to pay a visit to the Stewarts on the eventful evening which starts the play on its rapid fire, speed-defying journey of joys and jealousies. The senior Stewart slides out of the house late at night, followed by Percy and later by young Bertie, the destination of each being unknown to the other. The destination of each proves to be the same dining room in the Cafe Riche, where complications fairly tumble over each other throughout the act. The head-water steers the whole into greater and greater turmoil, the climax are post-jocular, lightened, the laughs come like discharges from battling guns, and the end of the act, which comes in a perfect tumult of comedy, finds the audience almost exhausted from laughing and gasping for breath.

It would be too bad to describe the last act, which in many ways is the funniest of the three and as the Boston Globe said: "There isn't a slow moment in the entire performance." "The Girl in the Taxi" will appear at the opera house on Saturday night, Oct. 8.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Howe's Pictures at the Opera House This Evening.

There was a man in the funeral procession of the late King Edward, who was there for a reason entirely different from any of the other two million people who witnessed the poignant and ceremonies. The man was a musical director by profession and an ambassador by appointment. But as an ambassador his mission was peculiar compared to the official ambassadors from all lands. This strange ambassador was—like Colonel Roosevelt—also an American. He was sent by Lyman H. Howe, to make minute observations of the selections and music played by the bands, etc., while the pageant moved over its courses and also at Windsor. He also made a record of all the "effects" of tolling bells, wailing whistles, etc., so that Mr. Howe could present to his American audiences a reproduction that would be as true and perfect in music and sounds as it is pictorially. It is booked for the opera house to-night. How impressive this reproduction actually is, was recently described by the Philadelphia Ledger, saying: "It is likely there will be no greater tribute to the splendid king than this presented so vividly to the American people." Of course, not the whole program is devoted to this subject, but, as usual, it includes an endless variety of scenes, ranging from grave to gay, such as the eruption of Mt. Etna; a ride up the Eiffel tower; the fairs of Norway; a Japanese jubilee; a modern miracle in railway construction on the Grand Trunk Pacific; life on a training ship; through Switzerland in winter, the geometograph, etc.

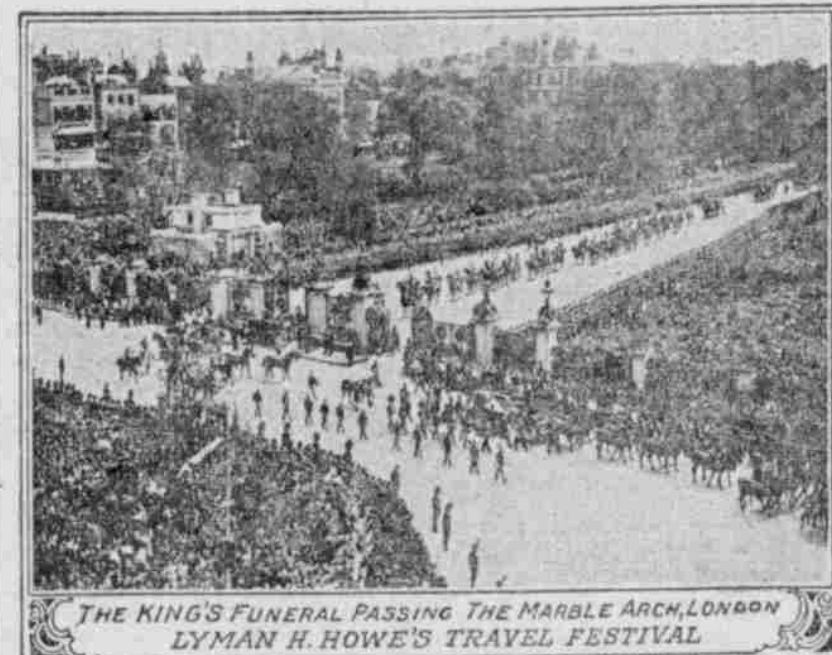

"The Wolf" Thursday Night.

Realism in stage effects is the constant aim of theatrical producers, and the latest innovation is the use of the phonograph in securing realism in their productions. The aid of the phonograph was sought in the case of Eugene Walter's stirring and virile drama of the Canadian Hudson Bay country, "The Wolf," it being used to reproduce the howling of a pack of wolves, thus carrying the effect called for in the last act of "The Wolf." The last act of "The Wolf" is laid at the portage of the Little Bear river, and the time of day is just after sundown. The stage is darkened and the figures of actors move ghost-like across the scene, the dialogue being spoken to the accompaniment of the wail of the waters of the river as they wash up against the banks, and in the distance one hears the howling and mournful crying of a pack of timber wolves crossing the range of hills in the background. To better realize the possibilities of the scene, Mr. Walter cast around for some means of producing the howling of the wolf pack than as possible by the ordinary mechanical means used for such purposes, and finally got in touch with director Hornaday of the New York Bronx zoo, who arranged that a photograph record be made of the howling of the pack of gray timber wolves that make the zoological gardens their permanent abode. Accordingly, the experiment was tried, and hereafter, sible by the ordinary mechanical means used for such purposes, and finally got in touch with director Hornaday of the New York Bronx zoo, who arranged that a photograph record be made of the howling of the pack of gray timber wolves that make the zoological gardens their permanent abode. Accordingly, the experiment was tried, and hereafter, the audience witnessing "The Wolf" will have the satisfaction of knowing that the atmosphere of the Canadian backwoods is really something more than mechanical, and that the blood-curdling howls emanate from the throats of real wolves, transported to the stage via the record of the talking machine. The success of this experiment in attaining realism means that other managers will now seek the same means in staging their pieces when the exigencies of the piece demand the voices of real animals, thus doing away with the aid of "traps" in the orchestra or the off-stage assistance of some obliging stage-hand, who, up to this time, have been the means of producing the effects desired. At the opera-house Thursday, Oct. 6.

HUGHES TO RETIRE SOON.

Expected to Resign Governorship of New York Some Time Next Week.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 5.—After serving the state since January 1, 1907, Governor Charles E. Hughes will retire this week, to assume his new duties as a member of the United States supreme court. Because of pressure of business, he will not formally resign to-day, as was expected. The time has not been definitely set for the taking of the oath of office by Lieutenant Governor White, who will succeed to the governorship. He will serve as governor until January 1 next.

Notice the Two Hods in the Base of the Crawford Ranges

One is an Ash Hod into which the ashes fall through a chute—all of them—and are easily emptied. The other Hod is for Coal. This feature saves lots of trouble and is patented.

Then there is the wonderful Single Damper (patented); slide the knob to "kindle," "bake" or "check," the range does the rest.

The Oven has cup-joint heat flues that heat it all over alike.

The Patented Grates save coal and trouble.

Last Friday, Mark Ladd, representative-elect, of Worcester, came to Barre, with his automobile for his cousin, Charles M. Seaver, of our place and for the ladies of Mr. Seaver's household and took them to his home, and after a delightful family visit, brought them back to Barre.

A RASH BECOMES MASS OF HUMOR

On Baby's Face, Head and Shoulders—Parents Decided He Could Not be Cured—Cuticura Made His Skin Perfectly Clear.

"Our boy was born in Toronto on Oct. 13, 1908, and when three months old a slight rash appeared on his cheek. What appeared to be a water blister would form. When it broke, matter would run out, starting new blisters until his entire face, head and shoulders were a mass of scales and you could not see a particle of clear skin. Other parts of his body were affected, but not to such an extent. We did not know what to do for him and tried about every advertised remedy without avail. Indeed some of them only added to his suffering and one in particular, the Remedy, almost put the infant into convulsions. The family doctor prescribed for him and told us to bathe the baby in buttermilk. This did not do any good, so we took him to a hospital. He was treated as an out-patient twice a week and he got worse, if anything. We then called in another doctor and inside of a week the boy was, to all appearances, cured and the doctor said his work was done. But the very next day it broke out as bad as ever."

"We decided that it could not be cured and must run its course and so we just kept his arms bandaged to his side to prevent his tearing his flesh. We left Toronto and shortly after our arrival in Duluth, the Cuticura Remedies were recommended. We started using them in May, 1909, and soon the cure was complete. You would not think he was the same child for Cuticura made his skin perfectly clear and he is entirely free from the skin disease. There has been no return this time. We still use only Cuticura for baby's bath. Robert Mann, Proctor, Minn., May 3, 1910."
